The Hackney Apartments, designed by Chas. D. Cuthbert, Architect, were built at a cost of $30,000.00 and are the largest and most up-to-date in the city, each apartment contains seven rooms with sleeping porch and sun-parlor on south.

The building is built of brick and stone and so arranged with a light court that each hall, pantry, etc., have an outside window.

Some unique features are the elevator to take up the furniture, etc. The smokeless down draft boiler, probably the first to be installed in the city in which the flames go down instead of up, the individual garbage receiver and the telephone and electric door opener system.

Seven private garages were built for the accommodation of tenants.

The building is finished throughout with hardwood trim and each door and window is stripped with copper to keep out any wind or dust, the laundry is complete with hot and cold water, gas clothes dryer, etc.
